

DUX BRITANNIARUM SHOCK SHIELDS

Print out the shields and cut them out on their square background. You can then base them on mounting board or similar. When your Groups suffer Shock you can place the relevant number on the shield adjacent to the rear rank of the unit as we have shown in the image below. As a simple visual indicator a Group with a Blue Shield is not too badly off, whereas one with a red shield is in trouble!

A much better solution would be to purchase some packs of loose shields and make these yourself. However, these markers will give you something to get started with. The apparently discarded shields don't interfere with the visual effect of the battle and allow you to keep track of Shock with ease.
