My Master would like to have _____ under his employ.

Daimyo

You are sworn to a Master. Describe your Master:

Bushido

The Samurai's Code of Honor is more important than life itself. Death would be an improvement to a dishonored Samurai. Were you to go against the code would bring dishonor upon yourself and your Master. All Seven Virtues of Bushido are important to you, but one comes most naturally to you:

- Justice - You are treated as if you have lawful authority
- Courage - You can force a foe to a one on one duel and set agreeable victory conditions.
- Benevolence - People are less likely to resort to violence against you.
- Respect - People greater than you (physically, socially, spiritually) will treat you as an equal.
- Honesty - People are more forthcoming with information.
- Honor - You can use your Honor as leverage to Parley but you can lose your honor on a miss.
- Loyalty - You will receive greater rewards for successive tasks you complete for the same person or group.

If you break one of the seven virtues you will become Dishonored. Your chosen virtue no longer fills your spirit, there is only regret there. You have two options open to regain your Honor: Your Master will give you a task to complete equal to your dishonor or you can perform Seppuku.

Upon My Honor(CHA)

When you claim to defend a Settlement on your Honor roll +Cha on a 10+ you hold 3. On a 7-9 Hold 2. *On a miss still Hold 1 in addition to what ever the GM says. As long as you working in the best interest of the Settlement you can spend the hold 1 for 1 to:

- Deal your max damage to a foe
- Ask the GM what is the best possible way to help this Settlement
- Completely negate any damage you would take from one attack
- Request Aid from your Master but it may take time to receive it
- Prepare a Battlefield to give you a tactical advantage
